Commenting on trading, Ian Cheshire, Group Chief Executive, said:

“With sales growth in each of our three main divisions and further solid profit growth in our final quarter we have ended another challenging year in robust shape. Our established programme of self-help initiatives has continued to serve us well and so we expect to announce full year adjusted profit in line with the current consensus of analyst expectations.*

“Looking ahead the global economic outlook is uncertain and so we will remain focused on self-help measures to trade the business effectively, whatever the market conditions. Our medium term ambition remains to reposition the business as the industry leader at the forefront of innovation, helping our customers have ‘better homes, better lives’.”

Analyst consensus of adjusted pre-tax profit £799 million, see www.kingfisher.com/investors/analystestimates for more detail. Adjusted pre-tax profit is before exceptional items, financing fair value remeasurements and amortisation of acquisition intangibles.*

Organisation update

The successful ‘Delivering Value’ programme, which was launched in 2008 following the appointment of Ian Cheshire as the Group’s CEO, concluded at the end of this quarter. A key element of its success has been adapting the organisational structure, introducing collective responsibility for our performance and establishing internal networks that bring together our international teams to work on common Group goals. This is known internally as the ‘One Team’ approach.

As we enter the next phase of Kingfisher’s development, ‘Creating the Leader’ we intend to build on the success of this new approach, accelerating the transformation from our origins as a loose conglomerate into a unified home improvement retailer with a clear sense of purpose and ambition. As part of this organisational evolution, Kingfisher today announces the following changes in the roles and responsibilities of the Group Executive team supporting the Group Chief Executive, Ian Cheshire:

Philippe Tible, currently CEO, Kingfisher France, will retain responsibility for our French and Spanish businesses and in addition will assume responsibility for the Castorama businesses in Poland and Russia. He becomes Kingfisher Divisional CEO, Castorama & Brico Dépôt.

Euan Sutherland, currently CEO, Kingfisher UK & Ireland, will become Kingfisher Chief Operating Officer with Group-wide responsibility for the key common range initiative, (which incorporates direct sourcing and own brands), and for developing our 'Eco' business. Euan will also assume responsibility for IT, Property and Human Resources and retain responsibility for the Screwfix business where several new Group-wide initiatives including multi-channel are currently under development.

Kevin O'Byrne, currently Group Finance Director, will become Kingfisher Divisional CEO, B&Q. Kevin will assume responsibility for the B&Q businesses in the UK and China as well as the B&Q joint venture in Turkey and our strategic alliance with Hornbach in Germany. Kevin will remain an Executive Director of Kingfisher. An internal and external search is currently underway to replace him as Group Finance Director.

Under this new organisation structure, the 'CEO, Kingfisher International' role will no longer exist. It is therefore with regret that we announce Peter Hogsted will be leaving the business later in the year.

All of these changes will take final effect on the appointment of a new Group Finance Director which we will separately announce in due course. In the meantime a progressive and extensive handover programme is underway.

Commenting on the organisation changes, Ian Cheshire added:

"Crucial to our success over the last four years has been the strength in depth of our whole management team and our new 'One Team' approach that better harnesses that talent. To support the next phase of our development, we intend to build on this momentum and today's changes will enable us to do that. However, I will be very sorry to see Peter go as he is a great retailer and has played a big part in our success to date. I'm very excited by Kingfisher's future potential and I'm looking forward to working with the management team and all our colleagues to deliver it."
